Sonny Perdue
GOVERNOR

To Our Honored Guests:

We are here to recognize the courageous efforts of Georgia's public safety community who are committed to achieve our most basic expectation of government: to keep our neighborhoods and communities safe.

Georgia's public safety professionals protect us from fire, crime and chaos. They are leaders in our communities during times of crisis. They guard us against international and domestic terrorists. They defend our children from being victimized by sexual predators.

Where you find commitment, you will also find sacrifice. As you review the backgrounds and accounts of this year's award recipients, I hope you will note the dedication and courage each have exhibited through acts of heroism and outstanding contributions to their professions.

It is a privilege for me to pay tribute to these public safety professionals. Each of them is individually reflective of Georgia's most admirable virtues.

Sincerely,

Sonny Perdue
In the early morning hours of January 24, 2008, a newspaper carrier observed fire coming from an apartment and called 911. Units from the Sylvania Fire Department responded and found heavy smoke and flames coming from the residence. Officer Moore and Firefighters Burke and Owens entered the structure and found a woman unconscious, lying face down.

They removed her from the building and Burke immediately began CPR on the victim after no pulse was found. After a few minutes, she regained consciousness. Firefighters searched other apartment units and began fighting the blaze. The victim was turned over to responding ambulance personnel and airlifted to Augusta due to smoke inhalation and burns to her body. Her life was saved by the quick response of these firefighters.

Dr. Robbie Friedmann has devoted his life to educating law enforcement professionals and the corporate sector to improve public safety services and develop counter-terrorism protocols to ensure a safer Georgia.

Growing up in Israel and serving as a young Israeli military officer, Dr. Friedmann experienced first-hand the challenges facing a free society. Through his personal experiences and years of study, Dr. Friedmann earned international recognition as an expert on counter-terrorism and Middle Eastern affairs.

In 1992, he created the Georgia-International Law Enforcement Exchange (GILEE.) Many of the security measures learned from our international counterparts were successfully implemented by Georgia law enforcement during international security events such as the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta and the Group of Eight Summit at Saint Simon’s Island.

Because of the vision of Dr. Friedmann, hundreds of law enforcement officers are better prepared to continue the fight against terrorism.

He is now the Director of Floyd Hospital EMS and is still very active in Gordon County. Bud Owens’ belief in making a positive impact in our world is evidenced by his commitment to service.

Drew Hood, Scott Phillips and Josh Shoemaker
Catoosa County Fire & Rescue

Act of Heroism

On September 3, 2007, Catoosa County Rescue Engines were dispatched to a multi-unit apartment structure fire in Ringgold. While en route, the 911 Center reported a woman trapped upstairs in her apartment.

Under extreme heat and heavy smoke conditions, Firefighters Drew Hood and Josh Shoemaker entered the apartment building without the protection of a hose line, made their way upstairs, and found the victim lying beside the bed.

She was extricated out of the building and delivered to a waiting medic unit. Firefighter Scott Phillips pulled a hose line to the front of the apartment and charged it. He placed a ladder to the 2nd floor window and was attempting to enter the window to search for the victim. Firefighters Hood and Shoemaker then used the hose line to extinguish a heavily involved kitchen fire. These three dedicated firefighters are credited with saving this person’s life.
On April 7, 2008, Officer Dorminey McCrae responded to an armed robbery call at the Piggly Wiggly grocery store. The suspect was armed with a handgun, holding a teenage store clerk hostage and trying to exit the building.

The suspect went back into the store office with the hostage. Officer McCrae entered the store and positioned himself on top of a counter where he could see over the top of a wall and into the office.

The 16-year-old hostage remained calm while making eye contact with the officer but not alerting the suspect. She moved her lips, saying, “Shoot him.” As she moved away from the suspect, Officer McCrae fired one shot striking the suspect in the forehead. There is no doubt that Officer McCrae’s ability to remain calm and patient until an opportunity for a clear shot helped end this incident with no physical harm to an innocent person.

Don Cargile has been EMS Director at Athens Regional Medical Center since 1983, making him one of Georgia’s longest serving EMS Directors.

His many outstanding accomplishments include working with the medical staff at the University of Georgia Health Services to coordinate medical coverage for over 92,000 spectators attending the home football games at UGA.

He served as the First Responder Coordinator for medical responders and ambulances covering the soccer venue for the 1996 Olympic Games. Cargile worked with Senior Paramedics and Social Workers in the development of a follow-up program for frequent users of the EMS system and assisted in the development of a very successful injury prevention program.

He has received numerous awards and accolades across the state. His 36 year career is exemplary and his professionalism is unquestioned.

No finer example exists of an individual who has made stellar contributions to public safety and public health than Don Cargile.
On January 3, 2008, the Gwinnett County Police Department’s North Precinct Community Response Team went to a residence in Sugar Hill to serve felony warrants.

Sgt. McKeithan and Cpl. Hoch went inside the residence and up the stairs to the suspect’s bedroom. When they were at the top of a flight of stairs, the suspect opened fire on them with a high-powered rifle, severely wounding both officers.

Officer Huth heard the shots from outside and went into the house. He exchanged gunfire with the subject, striking the gunman in the arm and forcing him to withdraw to his bedroom.

Officer Huth then carried one of the wounded officers out of the house. Outside, he provided cover while the wounded officers were moved to a safer position where they could receive medical attention.

Officer Huth risked his own life to rescue his fellow officers.

Prater could see the child strapped inside and entered the heavily involved car to get the child out. His first attempts were unsuccessful so he used his medical shears to cut the straps on the seat, rescuing the child.

Prater’s quick and brave actions prevented what could have been a tragic ending for these four people.
On July 26, 2007, Surveillance Officer Frank Rhodes, along with Probation Officers Benn Dunn and Wes Yawn, were traveling on Aviation Drive in Thomaston when they noticed smoke coming from a nearby trailer.

Officer Yawn called 911 while Rhodes and Dunn approached the trailer while heavy smoke and flames were coming from the front. Rhodes observed a man inside trying to break a window with his fist. Rhodes broke the glass with his flashlight.

While the occupant was trying to crawl out, a propane tank inside the trailer exploded, sending shrapnel flying and knocking Officer Dunn off his feet. Officer Rhodes ran back to the window and pulled the man out and away from the fire.

Thanks to Officer Rhodes, the occupant only suffered minor injuries and was saved from the fire.

On March 2, 2008, Sgt. Jason Elliott responded to the Sidney Lanier Bridge in reference to a male standing over the rail of the bridge. The decking of the bridge is approximately 250 feet above the river.

It appeared the man was distraught and was possibly going to jump. Sgt. Elliott assured him he was there to help, calming the man while stepping cautiously toward him.

The man slightly turned his body and began looking down at the water below. Sgt. Elliott moved into position, grabbed and pulled him over the guardrail and onto the bridge decking. He was able to subdue and control the person until an emergency squad could arrive to transport him to a hospital.

Thanks to his heroic and selfless actions, Sgt. Elliott saved a life.
On September 29, 2007, at 10:00 p.m., Captain Sammie Cephus, while off duty, came upon an automobile accident in Montezuma. The vehicle had struck a tree and had started to burn. Two of the four passengers were trapped inside the vehicle.

Captain Cephus entered the rear seat, and with no available equipment and no protective clothing, moved the front seat to the rear, allowing police officers to remove a passenger from the vehicle. He reentered the front seat and removed the driver from the burning vehicle and pulled him to safety.

He then helped fellow firefighters extinguish the burning vehicle and pulled him to safety.

He fired several shots at Deputy Marshal Alicia Davenport who had just pulled into the parking lot. While doing so, he was confronted by Officer Johnathan Goodrich and Officer Greg Anderson, and they too came under fire.

Detective Michael Dahnke stepped out from behind cover and ordered the gunman to stop. The suspect turned to confront him and Dahnke shot him in the right shoulder, ending the shooting spree.

Dahnke acted above and beyond the call of duty and at the risk of his own personal safety when he stepped out of cover to confront the shooter.
Sgt. First Class Scott Short was on his way home on January 23, 2008, when he came upon a head-on collision between a passenger vehicle and a log truck on GA Hwy 98 that had occurred just minutes earlier.

He learned that the driver of the log truck was trapped in the cab of the vehicle off the roadway and that the vehicle was on fire. Grabbing a fire extinguisher, SFC Short, along with a civilian, ran to the truck.

There, two fires were spreading – one under the cab and another at the fuel tank that had ignited the logs. Short climbed under the cab and extinguished the fire.

He and the civilian were able to partially open the cab door and pull the driver to safety while the fire from the fuel tanks and logs continued to grow. Because of Short’s brave actions, the truck driver escaped the crash with only minor injuries.

Act of Heroism

R. S. Caviness
DeKalb County Police Department

At approximately 4:30 p.m. on May 11, 2008, Sgt. Rick Caviness responded to a vehicle accident on Peachtree Industrial Boulevard. Upon arrival, he found a truck down an embankment, with two occupants in the truck and the cab on fire.

A passenger was unable to escape because of his injuries. Sgt. Caviness extricated the passenger and moved him to safety. He returned to the truck, where the fire was growing, and found the driver was semi-conscious and unable to help himself.

At great risk to his personal safety, Caviness freed the driver as the vehicle became fully involved in fire. After moving the driver to safety, Sgt. Caviness administered first aid to both injured victims until Fire Rescue arrived.

Due to his quick response and willingness to face danger, Sgt. Caviness saved the lives of the two occupants of the vehicle.
