Office of International Relations
Caucasus University
Georgia

is located in the Easternmost part of Europe, the South Caucasus, at the crossroads of East and West. It is bordered to the west by the Black Sea, to the north by Russia, to the south by Turkey and Armenia and to the southeast by Azerbaijan. Its capital is Tbilisi. Georgia has an area of 69,700 km\(^2\) and its population is approximately 4 million.

For thousands of years traders and adventurers have travelled through Georgia via the historic Silk Road, and their legacy abides in the local culture and the many UNESCO world heritage sites found here. Some of the earliest human remains, dating back 1.8 million years, have been discovered in the foothills of the Caucasus Mountains.

In spite of its relatively small size, Georgia offers visitors a rich cradle of culture, religion and ancient history. Georgia has year-round attractions for tourists, including snowy mountains perfect for alpine skiing, seaside resorts and a rich cultural heritage, remarkable churches, synagogues and mosques and charming ancient villages.

Climate

The greater Caucasus Mountain Range plays an important role in moderating Georgia’s climate, protecting the nation from cold air from the north, while the Lesser Caucasus Mountains protect from the very dry, hot air from the south. Average temperatures in summer vary from 19°C to 22°C, and in winter from 1.5°C to 3°C.
Tbilisi is the capital and largest city of Georgia. This enchanting, ancient city is situated along the winding river Mtkvari and was first founded in the 5th Century A.D.

Tbilisi is the industrial, social, and cultural centre of the country. Its proximity to lucrative east-west trade routes has often made it a point of contention between rival empires, and to this day it remains an important transit route for global energy and trade projects.

Tbilisi’s varied history is reflected in its architecture, which is a mix of medieval, classical and Soviet-era structures.

Historically, Tbilisi has been home to peoples of diverse cultural, ethnic, and religious backgrounds, and for centuries Georgians, Armenians, Jews, Kurds, Azerbaijanis, Greeks and members of many other nationalities have lived here as one extended family.

With a million and a half inhabitants, Tbilisi continues to grow. Numerous modern apartments and hypermarkets are under construction, but although the city is changing its main charm, its cultural diversity remains the same. The real soul of the city is hidden in the small balconied courtyards of Old Tbilisi, its narrow, winding streets, and the appropriateness of its contemporary developments, from the Presidential Palace to shopping malls, leisure facilities, bridges and parks.
Georgia

Culture

Georgia is renewed for its polyphonic music, in the form of folk songs and church hymns. When the US launched the VOYAGER spacecraft in 1997 it carried on board the traditional Georgian song Chakrulo as an example of the earth’s cultural heritage.

In 2001 UNESCO acknowledged Georgian music to be “a masterpiece of the world’s intangible cultural heritage”.

Georgian dancer remains a major cultural export. The Georgian State Dance Company tours the world for most of the year. The vigorous, leaping male dances, with their clashing swords, flying sparks and daggers thrown into the floor, contrast with and complement the graceful female dances.

Georgia boasts a substantial opera and ballet tradition. Several theatre companies perform in Tbilisi venues large and small, and Georgia’s theatrical and cinematographic traditions, and the original styles of contemporary local producers, are well known in the cultural circles of the West.

Georgia’s museums are centres for conservation, study and reflection on our heritage. The History Museum is renowned for its pre-Christian treasures and gold items, while the Museum of Art houses the treasures of Georgia’s Christian culture and specimens of Georgian painting.
Caucasus University was established in 1998 in partnership with Georgia State University (Atlanta, Georgia, USA).

Caucasus University is one of the most prominent higher educational institutions in the South Caucasus Region. It consists of eight schools: Business, Law, Media, Technology, Governance, Humanities, Tourism and Healthcare.

Caucasus University is the member of CEEMAN (the Central and Eastern European Management Development Association), IAUP (International Association of University Presidents), BMDA (Baltic Management Development Association), EFMD (European Foundation for Management Development), the American Chamber of Commerce in Georgia, Global Compact, NIBES (the Network of International Business and Economic Schools), the European Law Faculties Association, the France-Georgia Chamber of Commerce and Industry, the International Association of Law Schools, the International Chamber of Commerce in Georgia, the International Association of Universities, AISEC in Georgia, the Public Interest Law Institute, the Centre for International Legal Studies, the GUIDE Association and the Association of Universities of Georgia.

International Programmes
Caucasus University believes that international experience and exposure to other cultures is an integral part of the educational process. For this reason CU students are encouraged to take full advantage of such opportunities and undertake at least part of their studies abroad at CU partner institutions.

Transport

Tbilisi public transport includes: underground (metro), buses, mini-buses and taxi.

Metro
Tbilisi Underground, called the Metro for “Metropolitan”. Tbilisi metro has two lines and 21 stations. It operates from 6:00 to 24:00. The cost is set at 40 Tetri. Metro tokens can only be purchased in metro cashiers’. Metro stations are identified by the red (M) sign.

City buses
The buses run around the entire city and cost 40 Tetri. Buses run at fixed times from 6am to 12pm.

Minibuses
If you’d like to travel by minibuses you can catch it basically at any spot you wish (except: Chavchavadze Ave., Melikishvili St., Rustaveli Ave. and Freedom Sq.) as the minibuses have no fixed stops. The same principle works during the journey. The passenger may ask the driver to drop him/her off at any place he/she desires. Mini buses usually cost 50 Tetri. They run from 6am to 12pm.

Taxi
Taxi is the fastest transport means in Tbilisi, it is the only one from the public transports available for 24 hours. Tbilisi streets are overcrowded with the vast amount of taxis, despite the fact that the taxi can be stopped at any place of the city, it is far better to order its service by phone. Tbilisi can offer the service of several tax companies.
Accommodation Options and Costs

Programs

Bachelor of Business Administration
The 4 year BBA program is conducted in Georgian and English languages and is divided into eight semesters. The objective of the program is to provide students with practical skills that will enable them to run their own companies and perform effectively at business organizations. Within the program framework students learn how to face complicated situations in highly competitive business world and build confidence that helps them make successful career in business.

Concentrations: Finance; Accounting; Marketing; Organizational Behavior and Human Resource Management; Strategic and Operations Management; Marketing Research and Analysis (in partnership with Analysis and Consulting Team (ACT))

Language of study: Courses are taught in English and Georgian for 1st and 2nd year courses and are exclusively taught in English for 3rd and 4th year courses

Dual BBA program: CSB and J. Mack Robinson College of Business’s (RCB) Dual BBA program is essential for those who are seeking a successful career in business. The 4-year Dual BBA program has students complete the first four semesters at CSB in Tbilisi, Georgia and the last four semesters at RCB in Atlanta, Georgia, USA. The Dual BBA is conducted in the ENGLISH LANGUAGE. Its objective is to teach students practical skills that will enable them to run their own companies and perform effectively in business organizations.

Master of Business Administration
Caucasus School of Business offers flexible western style MBA Program. The program is taught totally in English and provides knowledge and skills in a wide range of business disciplines; the program is modelled after GSU MBA program recognized as one of the top American flexible MBA programs in the United States. Each subject is taught once a week, in the evenings, allowing the participants to attend lectures after the workday has finished. Students choose whether to take one or up to five subjects per semester.
MSc in Management
The purpose of this two-year Master's in Management is to provide students with the academic background, the analytical tools and the intellectual frameworks to study the questions raised in academic literature on management across the range of relevant academic fields, as well as an understanding of the broader political, social and economic environment in which contemporary firms operate. The study of underlying disciplines introduces students to knowledge about, and relevant to, management from a social science perspective. The degree is intended for students coming directly or recently from Undergraduate programs in any discipline and presumes no prior knowledge or practice in the field of management. The two years give students the time to achieve mastery over the full range of management disciplines and skills as well as the opportunity to complement their degree with courses from other disciplines or to take an exchange term abroad. The MSc in Management degree studies the academic discipline of Management. The MSc degree focuses on research in a specialized area. The MSc degree is more theory-oriented and prepares students for entry into the academia. The MSc degree contains strong professional focus and is very well suited for students wishing to gain positions in the industry.

Exchange/visiting programme

Caucasus University offers international students various ways to study, as it not only welcomes degree-seeking students but also short-term students such as exchange or visiting students.

Exchange Student Programme

The Exchange Student Programme is for students from CU’s partner universities who wish to study at CU for one or two semesters and transfer credits to their home institution. Since entering into the first student exchange agreement with Georgia State University in 1998 CU has signed more than 60 similar academic exchange agreements with institutions around the world.

To become exchange student candidates must be officially nominated by their home institution and pay the relevant tuition fee to their home institution, not CU. For more information on this programme, visit the website of the CU Office of International Relations or contact us:

msutidze@cu.edu.ge
Mariam Sutidze
Director of International Relations Department

Visiting Student Programme

The Visiting Student Programme is offered to students from non-partnering universities who nevertheless wish to study at CU for one or two semesters. These students must pay their tuition fees to CU and may request a credit transfer at their home institution. To apply for this programme student must apply directly to the CU Office of International Relations.
Once the International Relations Department of CU has received your documents, your application will be processed and in the event of a positive decision a Letter of Acceptance will be sent to the Home University. All application forms can be found on our web page: www.cu.edu.ge

The Caucasus University Student Self-Government

Self-Government at Caucasus University started functioning several years ago, and has positioned itself as a successful and remarkable functioning unit at the university. The self-government body now has more than 100 members. Any new ideas are welcome and every student is encouraged to participate in different projects. There are several directions, such as: sport, culture, education, PR, media and so on; and they offer university students many different opportunities.

The active and creative members of self-government have formed: movie club, intellectual games club, science and literature club, dance club, glee club and also a drama troupe.

Movie club - every Saturday students gather and watch a movie in the library of the university. They also have one or two guests who can discuss interesting topics about the problems addressed in the movie. Intellectual games club - every student is encouraged to form a team and answer the intellectual questions at different levels of the game.

Sports club - the self-government has provided the trainers for football, rugby and street basketball teams. The interested students have chance to train and participate in tournaments held between universities. Besides the regular teams, the sports department offers from time to time funny tournaments; any volunteer can participate in games such as: carting championship, paintball and so on.

Science and literature club - every week students invite different professors of science and discuss master pieces of literature with them. Also, sometimes they invite psychologists to learn more about art of communication and nonverbal gestures. From time to time young poets are invited and they share new trends in poetry and literature with students, who themselves are encouraged to present their own works.
Glee club - twice a week students who were chosen on the bases of casting, gather and under the guidance of a professional teacher learn different Georgian or foreign songs. They were first presented to the public at New Year party 2013.

Dance club - this year self-government has started new project “dance club”. The specially chosen students are trained by invited teacher to learn the art of Georgian national dances. On the ”CU soon”- New Year party evening they had their first successful performance.

Drama troupe - the most glorious club at the university is jjdrama troupe”. It started existing three years ago and since then it has presented two professional performances and won the acknowledgement of theatre critics.Every spring the specially invited producer Vato Jugheli holds a casting for all volunteers. The selected members of the troupe are trained and at the end of autumn they present the results of their sleepless nights, dedication and hard work. Intellectual games club - every student is encouraged to form a team and answer the intellectual questions at different levels of the game.

Events - there are some traditional reasons for which, every year, self-government organizes a party: welcoming new students at the beginning of the autumn, New Year party and the end of semester party. Every student has chance to attend the party where are offered free drinks along with other snacks and a concert program with participation of famous young singers and dancers, also, different funny games and entertainments. At the end of the evening DJ plays until the late night.
Last year self-government has established new initiation- charity events. Every year students choose people who need help and conduct charity evening for them. WE OFFER various weekly or monthly activities: excursions, exhibitions etc

You are VERY welcomed to join us!
Elene Kokhreidze

It was the most overwhelming experience in my life. Not because I had to study a lot but because I’ve gained much lifetime experience; I’ve made many friends and professional contacts; I’ve been sent abroad where I encountered the different culture. Regardless, I became independent and looked at life differently. Entering CU University was among the best decisions I’ve made. And I can surely admit that students who went through all the toughness and pleasure of studying in CU will overcome many obstacles and without difficulties.

Natia Chanturia

Choosing Caucasus University? - The most successful decision of my life. It gave me knowledge, experience and motivation for my professional development; I am happy that I studied at CU.

Mari Datishvili

Caucasus University is the place where you receive the best value for the money to study in Georgia; Caucasus University provides career opportunities for students and alumni alike. Caucasus University helps you network throughout your life.
What Do Our International Students Say?

Karoline Dickbauer, Upper Austria

The one thing that amazes me about Georgia the most is the friendliness and helpfulness of its people. I really appreciate all the support provided by the different departments, especially my teachers and my classmates. The courses are challenging and very interesting, including language lessons and the frequent quizzes and the way whole studying experience is set up.

Brent Allen Weeks, USA

Great Opportunities at CU!

Caucasus University has a first class education program, the campus is conveniently located in downtown, and nears many attractions Tbilisi has to offer. Staff members are extremely helpful and provide lots of advice and support. The school offers engaging extracurricular activities, and a library providing great resources and opportunities to meet new people. The teachers provide excellent instruction, often accommodating the needs of international students. One can balance the class work with plenty of time to experience the city. I would highly recommend CU to anyone interested in studying in the Caucasus.

Ray Khater, Beirut, Lebanon

When I first knew about my acceptance to join Grenoble Graduate School of Business MBA program delivered in Tbilisi in partnership with the Caucasus School of Business, I really became hesitant whether to move or not! From one side, I was sure the GGSB degree will make a radical change for a better career; thus a better life. On the second hand, the idea of continuing my studies in a Georgia was so confusing since I had no idea about the academic level there, not even knowing the basics about the country as a whole! As a student in CU, I can definitely admit that it was one of my best experiences I had in my life! Since the moment I arrived in the city, the CU admission body surrounded me with a lot of care in a way that made me feel as if I am still home! In addition to that, the academic level was over my expectations, the CU staffs are wonderful and my classmates are so friendly absolutely like the majority of the Georgian people! As a result, I gained the GGSB degree along with a great personal experience!
