

Georgia State University
Department of Psychology

Psychology Clinic

Our Commitment

We, the GSU Psychology Clinic, value the differences and similarities among people, and respect the multiple identities of clients and communities with whom we work.

Our Definition of Diversity

Our definition of diversity:

We define diversity broadly in terms of race, culture, ethnicity, sexual orientation identity, age, religious beliefs, socioeconomic status, physical and mental abilities, and gender identity.

We make ongoing efforts to increase our awareness of different identities and worldviews through both training and practice.

Training:

- Required coursework
- Professional development seminars
- Exposure to the latest research in areas of diversity
- Supervision

Practice:

- We work to assure that our assessments and interventions are culturally competent.
- We have a clinic diversity committee comprising student clinicians and supervisors.
- An understanding of diversity is incorporated into all aspects of treatment