Pick a bipartite graph $H$. What is the graph with the largest number of edges and no copy of $H$? Evidence hints at an algebraic answer to this question. In this talk, I will present the available evidence, and explain the current obstacles.